FAUST TELLS OF DIRIGIBLE

BIG SHIP IN FLIGHT NEXT MONTH OR AUGUST.

PROBABLY OVER HERE

Congressman Says People Will Be Given Good Opportunity Of Seeing Giant Aircraft In Action.

The huge navy dirigible, Shenandoah, is scheduled to come to the Middle West the latter part of July or the first of August, and in all probability will pass over Maryville on her trip from Creston to St. Joseph, according to a communication received today from Charles L. Faust, Congressman from this district, by D. A. Caldwell, secretary of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce.

The giant airship is scheduled to go to Maine for the Fourth of July and after that she will perform some scouting duties with the United States fleet for two or three weeks and then will come west.

Congressman Faust's communication to Mr. Caldwell is as follows:

"I have your letter of June 11th, with reference to the proposed flight of the Shenandoah. Admiral Moffitt is just now on leave, but I talked with the man who is substituting for him and found out the following facts:

"The Shenandoah is scheduled to go to Maine for the 4th of July, after that she performs some scouting duties with the fleet, and either the last of July of the first of August it is proposed to have her go to Minneapolis for a swing around the Middle West. Because of the fact that special equipment is required for her landing, it is hoped that she will make no landings after leaving Minneapolis. If one is necessary, it will be at Scott Field, St. Louis. She will circle over towns and cities on the route, and give them as good an impression as it possible to be had of her size and performance, but without stops.

"In case of head winds, or atmospheric conditions she would of course make for the nearest port. It is the hope of the Bureau that as many people as possible can have a chance to get this much of a view of one of the large dirigibles, and I think unless untoward conditions should prevail, or some accident to her engines, that the people of Maryville will have just as good an opportunity of observing her as any city, outside of Minneapolis and possibly Scott Field, if she should land there.

"I am sending my request in writing to Admiral Moffit that Maryville be included, and with the suggestion that it be given as full an opportunity to observe the big ship as can be done and I am quite sure from my talk with the officials, that if she comes west she will hover over your city.

"Anything further I can do in the matter please don't hesitate to ask me for I will be glad indeed to help any way I can, to have everybody get a view of this lighter-than-air craft."

May Sell Church to Masons at Hopkins

(Hopkins Journal)

There is a movement on foot to sell the Presbyterian church to the Masonic lodge of Hopkins and if such a transaction takes place, the Masons will remodel the building, transforming it into a temple to be used by the order. The trustees could not do a wiser thing than to sell the church to the Masons as long as it is no longer needed by the church by reason of the few members making it unwise to longer try to support a minister.

DEMANDS ARE TOO RADICAL

NEGOTIATIONS TO END STRIKE IN SHANGHAI FAIL.

ATTEMPTS ARE FUTILE

Negotiators Insist All Demands be Granted in Full—Foreign Diplomats Bolt Conference.

Shanghai, June 18.—Negotiations for a peaceful end of the general strike which has tied up all of the city's activities for two weks and resulting in serious disturbances, broke down tonight because of the radical demands of the Chinese negotiators.

The foreign diplomats bolted the conference and announced that further negotiations were futile. The diplomats, it was announced, would return immediately to Peking.

The Chinese negotiators insisted that their demands be granted in full, including the lifting of martial law, punishment of police who fired on student demonstrators participating in the general strike, indemnity for the slain and injured, and abolition of extra-territoriality.

VETS TO MEET HERE IN 1926

STATE CONVENTION IS SECURED FOR MARYVILLE.

SNYDER TO OFFICE

Local Man Is Chosen As Marshal of Missouri Organization of United Spanish War Veterans.

The 1926 state convention of the Spanish War Veterans will be held in Maryville in June of next year, according to a telegram received by the Democrat-Forum and Tribune this morning from H. D. Snyder, commander of the local post, who attended the convention that closed at Joplin yesterday.

Through the efforts of Mr. Snyder and the local Chamber of Commerce, the state convention was secured for Maryville next year.

About three hundred veterans of the Spanish American War will attend the meeting here. Every section in the state will be represented at the convention which will last for three days, perhaps starting with a Sunday night service at one of the Maryville churches. Marshall was the only competitor of Maryville for the convention next year, but the Saline County city did not have much chance to get the convention next year.

Mr. Snyder was chosen marshal of the state organization at the election of officers held yesterday. James W. Castanie of St. Louis was named commander to succeed Harry C. Hinman, also of St. Louis. Leon S. Gray of Kansas City was named senior vice-commander and I. O. Huey of Joplin junior vice-commander. Dr. William L. Sharp of St. Louis was chosen department surgeon, Francis Stevens of Webb City, chaplain, and E. A. Snyder of St. Louis, inspector.

Two sessions are held at the state convention at the same time. One is for the veterans of the Spanish-American War and the other is for the various auxiliaries of the posts.

C. of C. Co-Operates.

The board of directors of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce voted to co-operate with Mr. Snyder in his efforts to bring the convention here next year. Advertising matter on Maryville was sent to the convention at Joplin and distributed among the delegates.

Most of the delegates preferred the smaller towns over the cities for the state convention, Mr. Snyder said.

It will be necessary for the local post to have an auxiliary before the convention here next year and one will be organized within a short time. During the meeting in Joplin, the delegates visited the lead and zinc mines in that vicinity and saw them in operation. One of the largest mines is eighteen miles northwest of Joplin near the Kansas line. The delegates also visited the Pilcher Lead Works and saw the complete process of converting the ore into lead products of all kinds.

Military Order Meets.

The Snaix, military order of the serpent, held an initiation Tuesday night and were dressed up in their war paint and other regalia for the occasion.

Mr. Snyder was given the duties of assistant adjutant immediately upon his arrival at Joplin, and he was also a member of the auditing committee.

SENATOR "BOB" LA FOLLETTE, FAMOUS "INSURGENT", IS DEAD

END COMES AT 1:25 O'CLOCK THIS AFTERNOON.

NATIONAL CHARACTER

Candidate for President Last Year—Known Throughout Country as Fighter for Issues He Believed Right.

Washington, June 18.—Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, independent Republican leader and candidate for the presidency last year, died at his home here today.

He was 70 years old.

Death was caused by heart disease, complicated by recurring attacks of bronchial asthma and pneumonia.

La Follette had been in failing health since the close of his campaign in November, but was taken seriously ill last Friday and all members of his family were summoned here. They were at his bedside when the end came at 1:25 o'clock this afternoon.

La Follette's condition took a turn for the worse yesterday, but his physician, Dr. C. C. Maybury, did not despair of his ultimate recovery. This morning, however, after a restless night the Senator became gravely ill and Dr. B. M. Randolph, a heart specialist was called into consultation.

Mrs. La Follette, the widow, and Robert M. La Follette, Jr., have been with the Senator here since he was confined to his bed three weeks ago. His youngest son, Phillip La Follette, district attorney at Madison, Wisc., arrived here yesterday. This morning, the Senator's two daughters, Mrs. George Middleton of New York and Mrs. Ralph Sucker of Washington, joined the little group at the La Follette home on Wyoming street.

La Follette was 70 years old last Sunday. He was born in Dane County, Wisconsin, June 14, 1855. After serving as district attorney for four years, he was a member of Congress from 1885 to 1891, later elected governor, and then United States Senator.

La Follette was semi-conscious just before he died. Even at the end he was trying to make himself heard to those at the bedside, but his words could not be distinguished.

During the morning, as he became weaker and weaker, the Senator turned to his son-in-law, George Middleton, and said:

"Well, George, I am going to take a long, long rest this time."

Wisconsin Senator Has Been Aggressive Progressive During Whole Career.

Few men have left a deeper imprint upon the politics and Government of their time than Robert Marion La Follette—a Republican by name, but a fiery, fighting Independent by preference.

The nickname of "Fighting Bob" La Follette was no idle jest — it was real, as any number of Old Guard Republicans will ruefully testify.

La Follette's whole life, from the time he was a spindle-shanked, somewhat sickly boy in Wisconsin, until the time he expired in the corpulency of old age, was one of increasing struggle for the things in which he believed. Many people did not agree with him or his policies but few, if any ever questioned his sincereity for the loyalty which he gave without stint to the cause of Progressivism in American politics.

Varied Career.

He had a career that was unparalled in the politics of his time. He tasted the rarified atmosphere of the upper hights of popular favor but he also drank deep of the bitter dregs of disfavor. So bitter were they that at one time, when the nation was being swept with successive waves of war hysteria, a resolution of expulsion was introduced in the Senato because he had dared to speak his mind about the war. The resolution came to naught, and in his later life, La Follette always felt that vindication had been his.

La Follette was born in Primrose Township, Dane County, Wisconsin, on June 14, 1855. It may have been that La Follette's hatred of war was engendered in his boyhood, for in his adolescence the horrors, of the Civil War became deeply impressed upon his mind.

La Follette came of good American stock—Indiana and Kentucky settlers, who had braved the wilderness and had fought in the conflict between the States.

SENATOR R. M. LA FOLLETTE

Born on Farm.

Like so any other prominent men of his time, he was born on a farm and acquired an early knowledge with and symapathy for the men who wrest their living from the soil. He always had wanted to be a lawyer, and so at 24 after a hard struggle, he graduated from the University of Wisconsin. A year later, in 1880, he was admitted to the bar and hung out his shingle in his home community of Madison, Wisconsin. At that time, as he relates in his auto-biography, he had a mother and a sister to support and was himself engaged to be married.

La Follette's entry into politics came that same year. He was a thin, small youth of 25, who had a distinguished record in the university for oratory, but little else. He cast his eye on the District Attorneyship of Dane County, in which is located the university.

La Follette described his entry into politics humorously in his book, "A Personal Narrative of Personal Experiences." Having decided he would like to be District Attorney he proceeded to go after the position by personally soliciting the support of the farmers, students and people of the community. At that time, he confesses in his book, the principal attraction was the $800 yearly salary the job paid.

The Boss of Dane County at that particular time was one Colonel E. W. Keyes, the Postmaster at Madison. For some time, La Follette relates, Colonel Keyes suffered him to continue his canvass of the voters, seeking support for his candidacy, and then Keyes summoned him to the post office.

Defied Boss.

"He told me I was wasting my time," said La Follete. "He also told me the name of the next District Attorney of Dane County—and his name was not La Follette."

He made the youngster mad, it appeared, and from that time on La Follette was insurgent. La Follette continued his canvass among the Swedes and Norwegians he knew so well, with the result that on election day he made an astonishing run and beat the machine by the narrow margin of 22 votes. He held the office for four years and then decided he wanted a broader field and came to Congress—a stripling of 30 years.

He served in Congress for three terms and then went back to the State "disgusted," as he himself phrased it, by the manner in which things were done in Washington. He thought he could accomplish more good in the State than in the vast machinery of Congress and national life, where he was only a small cog.

For ten years then La Follette practiced law and directed the progressive movement in his State—out of office. Then, in 1901, he ran for the Governorship and was elected. He served in all three terms, making a progressive record that gave birth to the much-mooted "Wisconsin idea," so talked of some years ago. Railroad reform was his particular hobby, and he made the roads of his State sweat blood.

He resigned from the Governorship finally and in 1905 came to the United States Senate, where he has been continually in the forefront of progressive fights.

Always Candidate.

From 1908 on, La Follette was always a candidate for the Presidency, and always he received Wisconsin's vote in the national conventions.

La Follette had real aspirations in 1908. He had a remarkable record as a Progressive Governor of Wiscon-

EXPLORERS IN SAFE RETURN

AMUNDSEN PARTY REPORTED AT KING'S BAY.

RESULT IS UNKNOWN

Message Merely Tells of Arrival—Hopped Off Just Twenty-Eight Days Ago.

London, June 18. — Capt. Raold Amundsen and his party of polar explorers, including Lieut. Lincoln Ellsworth, an Ohio aviator, are safe at King's Bay, according to a Central News dispatch received here this afternoon.

The explorer and his party thus returned to their hopping off place just twenty-eight days after they poked their noses of their planes toward the North Pole.

King's Bay, the point mentioned in the news dispatch, is north of Spitzbergen, the northernmost place from which departure for the Pole could be made.

The Central News dispatch gave no details of Amundsen's return journey nor the extent of his discoveries, if any. It merely reported the receipt of news in Oslo, the Norwegian capital, of the explorer's safe return to Kings Bay. Amundsen's message to Oslo, according to the dispatch here, read merely:

"We arrived at 1 o'clock at King's Bay. All right."

New York, June 18.—Unofficial word that Capt. Roald Amundsen, the explorer, and party missing since May 21 when he started for the North Pole, are safe was received here this afternoon by Bernon S. Prentice, brother-in-law of Lincoln C. Ellsworth, Amundsen's chief aid.

Prentice says his information came from a news agency that had been instrumental in promoting the flight. Prentice is chairman of the American auxiliary committee that functioned to provide counsel and finance for the Amundsen-Ellsworth venture.

"I think it very likely the report is true," Prentice said. "I have always thought they were safe and would turn up all right. However, I didn't expect them to turn up so soon."

By United Press.

New York City, June 18.—The North American Newspaper Alliance today announced through the United Press that word has been received from King's Bay, that the North Pole explorer, Roald Amundsen and all his party have returned safely from their polar flight.

Rome, June 18.—Premier Mussolini today announced that Italy will shortly be ready to negotiate the funding of her debt of approximately two billion dollars to the United States.

All Solicitors Will Be Out by Tomorrow

Meeting With Favorable Response in Drive to Raise Funds to Improve Cemetery Roads.

The third day of the popular subscription drive to raise funds for improving the cemetery roads, conducted by the Maryville Cemetery Road Improvement Association, was full swing today. According to John G. Mutz all of the city has been assigned to solicitors except two streets, Edwards and First streets, east of Main street.

It is expected that all of the solicitors will be out tomorrow and the campaign concluded by Saturday night. It is reported that the men from the various organizations undertaking the canvass have met with favorable results so far this week.

The Weather

Partly cloudy tonight and Friday, probably scattered thunderstorms; not much change in temperature.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE DEAD

sin. Roosevelt was retiring and La Follette did not like the idea of T. R. nominating his own successor—which he did in the person of William Howard Taft. He swallowed his disappointment, however, and struggled on through the very conservative years of the Taft Administration, always holding aloft the torchlight of Progressivism.

Again in 1912, the year of the Republican split, he felt he had a chance. But the powers in his party were fearful of him—he was too progressive—and again he was disappointed.

There are enemies of La Follette who say that these successive disappointments were responsible for much of La Follette's so-called radicalism. But his friends deny this with considerable warmth and point to his undeviating progressive record of a lifetime as refutation of the charge that he was a Progressive because he was resentful.

Opposed War.

Came the war and the hysteria that accompanied it. La Follette was opposed to it and he threw all his magnificent ability into the cause of keeping the United States out of it. He was the one of the few that voted against the passage of the war resolution. He was one of Woodrow Wilson's "wilful men."

But he stuck grimly to his ideals and his beliefs. He never opposed successful prosecution of the war, once America was in it, but he believed our entrance was a mistake, and he said so, boldly, defiantly and whenever the opportunity offered.

The incident that brought about the expulsion resolution in the Senate was a speech at St. Paul, which he delivered without manuscript. He spoke about the war, and he claimed to his dying day that his speech was misquoted. At any rate some of his colleagues in the Senate, notably Kellogg (R.), of Minnesota, whose election he had opposed, who had watched with growing anger La Follette's criticism of America's war effort, sponsored the movement to expel him from the Senate for disloyalty to the nation.

Aided By Penrose.

For a time it looked like his enemies might accomplish their purpose, but in the end it was Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, who saved him.

The Democrats, smarting under his attacks on Wilson, were for ousting him forthwith. Some of his Republican enemies sympathized with them. But Penrose, the "boss," who was the direct anithesis of everything that La Follette stood for, grunted "No." Penrose liked La Follette. They seldom if ever were on the same side of a question, but there were few personal friendships in the Senate as close as that between the fiery Wisconsin Progressive and the taciturn, reactionary Pennsylvania Boss. They had a mutual respect for courage and ability. Penrose was what he was; La Follette was what he was; and they liked each other, respected each other; and there was no more sincere mourner at Boies Penrose's death than La Follette. There would have been no more sincere mourner at La Follette's death than Penrose had he lived.

La Follette's comeback into popular favor after the war is one of the most remarkable episodes in American politics.

He was an unflinching and bitter foe of Woodrow Wilson's international idealism. Tooth and nail he fought the League of Nations, and the Republicans who were opposing it found cause to give thanks that Penrose's "No" had kept them from expelling him a few months before.

It was not until 1922 that La Follette reached the heights of his comeback. He had consistently and with great ability opposed most of the legislation sponsored by the Harding-Coolidge administration in the first two years of its life—the tariff, the Esch-Cummins railroad law, etc.

Fighting As Usual.

Came the elections of '22, and La Follette went into them, as was his custom, with arms aflying. He caused the defeat of Kellogg in Minnesota, of McCumber in North Dakota, and he showed up at the beginning of the Sixty-eighth Congress with the balance of power between the Democrats and the Republicans in both Houses of Congress. And he used that power spectacularly. He could not put across his own legislative program, but he forced both Democrats and Republicans to "play ball" with him to get their programs through. He demanded concessions and got them, and as closely as he could he shaped their projects to his dearly beloved progressive ends.

One chart shows the number and percentage of school children receiving more of the desirable foods; the second chart shows the number and percentage of school children getting less of the undesirable foods; and the other shows the number and percentage of school children who have improved in health given incidently in connection with the nutrition program.

Illustrated by the means of concrete examples Miss Harris shows what constitutes a "good" and a "bad" breakfast. The good breakfast consists of buttered toast, milk, boiled egg and whole cereal. The bad breakfast comprises wheat cakes, fried egg and coffee.

Chamber of Commerce Is Greatest Agency in Community Advertising

The following is the fourteenth installment of the article on "Community Advertising," written for the Democrat-Forum by D. A. Caldwell, secretary of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce:

The major functions of a Chamber of Commerce Secretary are: (1) To cooperate with the Board of Directors, (2) To assist the chairmen in planning committee work, (3) To interpret to the membership and the public the ideals of community betterment.

Today there are more than a million men and women, scattered throughout 3,000 towns, villages and cities, who have come to know something of the modern commercial organization. The Chamber of Commerce knows more than any other agency in the community about the machinery that should be brought into play in planning an advertising program that will avoid dictatorship and encourage leadership.

Chamber of Commerce leaders will make more easy of accomplishment the things necessary to be done by building up economic strength with what is already located near at hand and by adding to the assets known to exist. From now on American cities that value their futures, that plan to do community advertising on a scientific basis, are not going to be in such a hurry to arrive.

The modern Chamber of Commerce aims to interest itself in a disinterested way, in the development of higher community ideals.

A Chamber of Commerce is primarily a business organization, aiming to promote the business and civic as well as the social interests of the community. It looks at all problems through the eyes of the man engaged in business development, but also gives consideration and attention to the other sides of the community's development, because all phases of human activity are interrelated. In competition between cities there are two very important elements; the purely business or economic opportunity and the human side. The cities in which people of moderate means have comfortable homes, healthful recreation, good public services, modern schools, and police protection, are winning out. So long as there is a margin in any American city between what it is as a place to work in, and what it may become, there is work for the modern Chamber of Commerce.

Jury Decides Ghost Isn't Such Bad Thing

Shelbina, Mo., June 18.—To be a ghost isn't such a bad thing a jury here decided.

Everett McLaughlin sued Emmett Swisher, who lives near Philadelphia, Mo., for $20,000 on account of Swisher charging he was a—rather "the"—ghost.

Last fall some one tossed rocks, eggs and other missles against the Swisher home. There were other indications of ghostliness and ghastliness.

McLaughlin brought the libel suit because Swisher had charged he was one of the principal ghosts in the affair.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, June 18.—Grain futures finished lower on the Chicago Batrd of Trade today. Final efforts to regain the day's losses was abruptly ended by the closing gong.

A general rush of shorts and a good deal of eastern buying sent wheat upward following sharp recessions around mid-day. Pressure followed the opening advance on favorable spring crop news.

Corn was the greatest sufferer. buyers were best sellers on favorable crop advises. Oats attracted little attention.

The advance in provisions reflected higher hogs and export inquiries.

Profanity Causes a Fight at Castlewood

St. Louis, June 18.—Profanity used on the beach near Castlewood, Mo., this week cost three youths damages to their facial beauty.

The three young men were tossing curse words about through the air when a tall and somewhat languid looking boy "called them." They jeered his endeavors to quiet the abusive language.

The tall lad swung on one of the three, knocking him down. The other two leaped to battle.

When the fray had ended the three cursers walked away nursing somewhat sore jaws. The tall youth was unmarred and refused to discuss the incident.

Throws Dish Water; It Costs 1 Woman $500

Kansas City, Kan., June 18.—When Mrs. Rosena Hoqumburg, station agent for the Missouri Pacific Railway at Nearman, Kan., threw a pail of dishwater into the road near the station, she lost $500.

A jury in district court here awarded that amount to Robert M. Sebree, farmer, who was injured in a runaway caused, he alleged, by his team's fright at the wet spot on the road made by the dishwater. Sebree sued the railway company for $3,000.

Attorneys for the railroad contended Mrs. Hoqumburg was off duty when the dishwater was thrown out and that the company was not liable. They also sought to show that Dan, the mule that started the runaway, was a vicious mean-tempered brute.

Vitamines Likely to Revolutionize Clothing

Says Stored Up Sunlight, Or Ultra Violet Energy, Can Cure 60 Per Cent Of Ills.

London, June 18.—Vitamins may cause a revolution in man's method of clothing and housing himself.

"Vitamins are nothing more nor less than stored-up sunlight, or ultra violet energy," says Dr. Hector Munro, London specialist, "yet they are able to cure 60 per cent of man's ills. The vitamin element may be obtained by eating fruit, chiefly oranges and lemons, but the same effect is secured if the sun's rays reach man's body. Fruit simply catches and stores up the vitamin element obtained from the sun's rays.

"Search is being made for a fabric which affords protection from other elements, but which still admits the ultra violet rays to the body. Artificial silk admits these rays. Real silk does not. I can picture the business man of the future going about his daily work wrapped only in a few folds of artificial silk.

More Sunlight

"He will live in a house which admits all the sunlight possible and will be much healthier than the present-day citizen of the world."

Metabolism consists of three processes—intake, repair and elimination. Sixty per cent of human ills, according to Dr. Munro, are caused by faulty elimination, a defect which the presence of vitamins seems to do much to remedy.

The value of vitamins to health has been proved by using rats in experiments conducted by the Lister Institute of London, in which Dr. Munro is interested.

Rats fed on oranges and kept in the sunlight grow fat and healthy. Others fed on boiled meats and other products supposed to make up the perfect food and kept in a dark room, lost half their weight.

Regain Weight

Later the rats which had lost weight were given orange and sun light, and within a week they regained their normal weight.

Rats which had been kept in dark rooms and were unable to assimilate their food, thrived immediately when they were given beds of sawdust which had been exposed to ultra violet rays.

Dr. Munro admits the problem of securing vitamins from sunlight in London is a difficult one because of the infrequency of the sun's appearance.

But a "Sunlight League" has been formed, the chief purpose of which is to work for the abatment of the smoke nuisance so that the sun's rays may occasionally reach the city dweller.

Cuts Tire Costs

Don't throw away good tire miles. The break that takes a tire from active service can be repaired. The rest of the tire may be in good condition, and with a proper repair, will be worth one-half the cost of a new tire to you.

We specialize in repairing injured tires by latest methods. The old section is torn down and new material built in like the tire was constructed at the factory. Balance and appearance are not affected. Heat reaches the rebuilt section only, which does not "over cure" the other portion.

We take no worn tire that we think is not worth repairing. Every job turned out is guaranteed. Our prices are exceptionally low.

GIANTS PLAY HERE SUNDAY

TO OPPOSE THE MARYVILLE MERCHANTS' CLUB.

TO PITCH WILLIAMS

Are Making Headquarters Here Temporarily—Buhler to Oppose Negroes on Mound.

After one Sunday of idleness the Maryville Merchants' Baseball Club will be seen in action on the local ball diamond, at old fairgrounds, this Sunday, June 21.

At this time the local boys will have the Milwaukee Giants for opponents. The Milwaukee Giants have been making Maryville their headquarters for the last three weeks, playing many teams in the surrounding territory, even up in Nebraska and Iowa, and to date have not met defeat. The Giants, a negro club, carries fourteen men with them, and are gradually working north to their headquarters, playing independent baseball. Among the fourteen ball players, five can be used on the mound.

For the game Sunday Williams will probably be started on the hurler's mound, to oppose Henry Buhler, pitching for Maryville.

The Giants had some games scheduled the fore part of the week in Iowa, but due to the weather conditions, were unable to fulfill the engagements. On Saturday of this week they will play Albany at Albany. Monday is open date and on Tuesday they play at Leon, Ia., and Wednesday at Corning, Ia.

The Milwaukee Giants line-up for Sunday against Maryville:

Brown, left field; G. Williams, third base; Harris, short stop; Shelton, first base; Hopwood, center field; Theyse, second base; Parker, right field; and choice of H. Williams, Page and Goach, pitcher, with Palmer as utility man.

G. D. Williams is managing the club and said this morning he is willing to book a few more games in this vicinity while making headquarters here.

Golf Team Will Go to Villisca Sunday

R. C. Seal, Captain, Names Six Men From Country Club to Comprise Team That Day.

On Sunday the golf team of the Maryville Country Club will go to Villisca to compete in another leg of the Iowa-Missouri Golf Association tournament.

R. C. Seal, captain of the team for this occasion, has named the following members of the club for the team Sunday:

M. S. Hamilton, C. G. Vogt, H. Frank Lawrence, Byron Costello, Forrest Gillam and Luther A. Richman. Hamilton will act as captain during the match.

The team that will compete at Villisca in the four-cornered match are Clarinda, Hamburg, Villisca and Maryville.

Will Develop the State Park System

Jefferson City, Mo., June 18.—The state parks of Missouri will be watched after carefully this year through an innovation by Keith McCanse, state fish and game warden.

McCanse has appointed Lawrence Hert, California, Mo., newspaperman, to be divisional chief of properties of the fish and game department and this means overseeing the state parks. At present there are seven state-owned and controlled parks.

"With the acquisition of the state parks and the proposed extension of the fish hatcheries" said Commissioner McCanse, "it was necessary to place a man directly in charge of the work. There are many problems arising in connection with the state's property which demand the attention of a divisional head.

"It is the aim of the game and fish department to function properly by protecting the fish and game of the state, developing our park system and replenishing the wild life of Missouri. The appointment of a chief of properties, who will be in constant touch with our parks, will help carry out the program."

"Be Worthy of America," Hughes

Ex-Secretary of State Says Cure for Ills of Democracy Is Not More Democracy, But More Intelligence.

Boston, June 18.—Since its victory in the battle for liberty, this country has been engaged in another struggle to establish the "rule of reason," and in that struggle it has been measurably successful, Charles Evans Hughes said here yesterday.

He was speaking in historic Faneuil hall at the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill.

The ex-secretary said the United States was faced by several dangers—the decline of patriotism, radicalism, racial and religious bigotry, overconfidence rising from wealth and strength and the "passion for uniformity," which threatened local self-government.

Despite these forces of disintegration, Mr. Hughes said, the standards of integrity in business and political life are higher than ever the press is fair, the people as brave as their Bunker Hill ancestors and interest in important social problems is increasing constantly.

"Well May Rejoice."

"When we examine the records of the past," he said, "the long story of revolt against tyranny, the disorder, the privations, the helplessness of the multitudes and the mistakes of leaders, we well may rejoice at our own inheritance. The men of Bunker Hill made possible this heritage. Let us preserve it. It is not for us to make America, but to be worthy of it."

"Democracy is not a theory. It is the life of free men who keep the fires of liberty burning brightly on their own hearts. As we observe the widen spread simulation of Democratic forms among peoples still without self-discipline or training in the most difficult of arts, we realize we have fallen upon a time when it is not necessary to argue the right of self-government, but to demonstrate the capacity for its exercise; not to invoke the name of liberty, but to learn the practice of liberty.

"In this spirit, with the desire to feel the glow of reconsecration, to find the zeal for the toilsome pursuit of the good yet unattained, the celebrations of the anniversaries now crowding upon us of the period in which our institutions had their birth will not be treated as perfunctory or as a mere tribute to piety."

"Failure Depends on U. S."

Reviewing the growth of the nation since the Revolution, Mr. Hughes said:

"If, having achieved so greatly, we now should fail or retrograde, it will be due not to forces from without, but to processes of decay, to the weakening of our fiber, to lessened self-restraint and nervous instability, to the weariness and indifference incident to a delusion of security, to the loss of the individual in the mass, to institutions getting out of hand because of the complexitiese of administration, with ills left unremedied and false remedies creating ills.

"The cure for the ills of democracy is not more democracy, but more intelligence. We cannot enjoy the blessings of liberty without the freedom of knowledge.

"To the extent that we exhibit the capacity for self-government, we may hope to secure our peace by being reasonable and just in our dealings abroad."

Moral: Plant Spuds for Chicken Feed

(Hopkins Journal)

C. A. Aley, one of our model farmers, discovered a long time ago how to head off potato bugs. He was operating a farm in the Arkoe vicinity and happening one year to have an idle piece of ground near where the chickens ranged, decided to put same in potatoes, planting them "for the chickens" rather than expecting a crop, feeling sure the chickens would take them, but the chickens took the bugs and the potatoes made a good yield. The potatoes he planted the same year on another spot on the farm were eaten up by bugs and since then he always plants his potatoes near where his chickens run and he is never bothered with bugs, having as fine a patch of spuds this year as can be found in the township.

Dr. E. A. Miller left this afternoon for a two or three weeks visit in the west, including a stop at Longview, Wash., where his son Earl is connected with the Long-Bell Lumber Co., so don't have the toothache, please, until he gets back.—Hopkins Journal.

Meriwether Lewis May Well Be Called Founder of Missouri National Guard

(By Roy Godsey)

Meriwether Lewis may well be called the founder of the Missouri National Guard, having organized the first units while serving as territorial Governor in 1807.

Incredible as it may seem, nevertheless it is a matter of record that British sympathizers and certain British officers who remained in the United States following the Revolutionary War offered to pay a regular bounty to Indians for the scalps of male citizens of Missouri territory.

This information was carried to President Thomas Jefferson by a special committee, selected from among the citizens of St. Louis. The committee left St. Louis late in the winter of 1807 for Washington going down the Mississippi River to a Tennessee landing and then across the country on horseback. It is a matter of record that this course was taken to avoid the severe blizzards of the north.

President Jefferson received the Missourians at his office and was soon convinced that the people of Missouri were contending with British treachery and Indian ferocity, which combined would hinder development in the newly acquired territory west of the Mississippi River. Before the conference ended the president gave assurance that a Governor of Missouri would be appointed who would be charged with the responsibility of organizing a military force, from among the "Free Male" citizens of the territory, to protect the people and property from Indian depredation.

The new Missouri Governor named by President Jefferson was Meriwether Lewis, his private secretary.

Lewis was especially fitted both by nature and training to assume the task of organizing and directing the training of such a military force in Missouri. He belonged to a distinguished family, long prominent in the colonial and revolutionary affairs of Virginia. He was educated at home and enjoyed all the benefits of such educational institutions as Virginia then had. At the suggestion of George Washington he had accepted a commission as captain in the regular army and when Jefferson was elected president, he was selected as private secretary. Lewis remained with President Jefferson until place in command of what is known as the Lewis and Clark Expedition to the northwest, one of the most important explorations in American annals, for with a body of picked men, Merriwether Lewis and William Clark followed the Missouri river to its headwaters and crossed the Rocky Mountains to Columbia River, returning by the way of the Great Divide, the Yellowstone River and the Missouri to St. Louis. From St. Louis, Lewis went direct to Washington to take up again his duties as secretary to the president and it was soon after his arrival in Washington that he was appointed Governor of Missouri.

His personal adventures as a member of the Lewis and Clark expedition, financed by the federal government, ostensibly to extend the external com-

All Should Participate in Muster Day Activities Says Major Palen

The following questions and answers in regard to Defense Day, July 4, were prepared by Maj. M. A. Palen of U. S. Infantry, Omaha, Neb.:

Question 1. By whom is it authorized?

Answer 1. Muster Day is authorized by the President of the United States under the provisions of the National Defense Act of June 1920. This act gives us the first real military policy the United States has ever had. It is an economic and democratic military policy thoroughly consistent with our national tradition. Our national tradition is a small regular army and a citizen army capable of being enlarged and expanded in time of emergency.

Heretofore we have raised and extemporized our armies after the declaration of war. Under the present National Defense Act these armies and all their military units are organized and their officers are trained in time of peace for the duties they will have to perform. Muster Day is a day on which every citizen is given some idea of the specific part he will have to play as an American citizen.

Question 2. Who should participate?

Answer 2. Every man, woman and child of the United States should participate. Wars of today are not fought by trained armies alone but by citizens, each one playing a part, large or small, according to his task.

Question 3. What should they do?

Answer 3. Every man, woman, and child should demonstrate his patriotism, his loyalty to his country and flag and his willingness to defend it by participating in prayer for peace, prayer for our national welfare, displaying and honoring the American flag, marching in parades, listening to patriotic music, reading of the "Declaration of Independence," listening to patriotic addresses, volunteering for a day in a military organization in his community, and taking part in ceremonies held in observance of Muster Day.

Valentino's Last Picture at College

Rudolph Valentino's last and most elaborate picture, "Monsieur Beaucaire," will be shown at the College auditorum Friday and Saturday of this week. This picture is taken from the story written by Booth Tarkington. A notable cast including Bebe Daniels, Lois Wilson, Doris Kenyon and Lowell Sherman, support Valentino in this picture.

The costumes in this screen version is probably the most marvelous that have ever reached the screen. The scenes are laid in France in the eighteenth century in the court of Louis XV. The story is one of love, intrigue, honor, dishonor, and fidelity as it was practiced in the court of this famous European monarch.

Valentino takes the role of the Duke de Chartres, gay and handsome gentleman of the court, a favorite of the king. Bebe Daniels plays opposite him in the role of Princess Henriette, fresh and innocent girl just from a convent. In a thrilling manner the plot carries the Duke into duels, banishment and ill-repute finally to be vindicated and re-instated in the court and in the heart of Princess Henriette.

RECKONING MAN LOSS IN WAR.

Revised estimates of the losses in the World war as given by a writer in Current History show that 8,471,595 men were killed in that conflict. The wounded number 21,099,935. Out of 54,683,810 engaged one out of eight was killed and one out of three wounded. On the basis of numbers under arms Rumania sustained the heaviest death losses, nearly half her forces being killed. The United States suffered the least comparatively, our late entry into the military operations contributing to that result.

The percentage basis of casualties does not state the case fairly for the American forces. For the time our soldiers were in combat service and for the number thus engaged we lost quite as heavily as some of the others, though in the aggregate the loss is slight in comparison with nations fighting for more than four years. In number of killed Germany ranked first with 1,773,000, France lost 1,357,800, Austria-Hungary 1,200,000 and Great Britain 908,371. Our loss is placed at 50,380 killed and 205,690 wounded.

Bare figures do not convey much information. They are too abstract. If two out of every three persons in the United States had been mobilized and placed under arms the number would have equalled the forces engaged in the war. The killed approached the entire population of Pennsylvania. The wounded were as numerous as the people in New York, Pennsylvania and Oklahoma combined.

These are losses of man-power. If the other losses incidental to the war were included the list would be extended greatly. And not all would be of a material character. There were losses sustained that cannot be reckoned in numbers of men nor in dollars and cents, yet are a part of the loss.

GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME.

The human race needs the summer time in which to cool off. The beasts hibernate; they have no strenuous intellectual life. They don't worry about possible fights, short crops of berries, probable hard winters or opinions of their neighbors. They get fat in summer and sleep through the winter.

But humans need to estivate to get the same rest-up from their period of greatest activity. They have lived a thousand years in one during the long winter. They have had their own fears and the fears of the world. They have suffered with the Japs and Russians and Armenians and Chinese, been irritated by the muddlings of congress, in addition to the multitudinous cares of their own business and other interests. They have crowded on all steam to get through their social engagements; they have worked hard at their amusements; they have been over-vexed and over-drawn most of the time. Such is the tension of modern life in winter time.

Forget it. There's a big wheat crop; cherries are cheap; the hens are laying. It's a big year, a fine year, a fat year. The bands play dreamy music; listen and don't think. The sun is bright, the big flies are buzzing; it is a drowsy time. The mood of nature is right. Without the relaxation of summer the race would go stark mad. Let no man condemn himself for longing for vacation. It were better for us to see to it that every last human being whose brain has run hot with the friction and the strain of living in days like these, should be guaranteed his period of rest and forgetfulness.

WHEN A WOMAN'S AROUND.

A dentists association sponsors the statement that the young woman who stands by when teeth are being pulled or drilled is really a diplomat who outtricks pain and by psychology helps the patient to unconsciousness of his suffering.

That may be the way it seems to the dentists. But male sitters will be inclined to explain the apparently quieting effect of her presence as traceable to the restraint which masculine pride places on the impulse to vent groans and emit yells of pain when a woman is in the audience.

Golfers, Try This With Your Putter

Los Angeles, June 18.—A golfing feat of international importance, to the stymie rule at least, was accomplished at the links of the Annandale Country Club when Frank "Kumback" Smith of the Annandale Club, negotiated a stymie which experts had claimed to be impossible.

And by making the shot Smith collected on a $100 to $1 bet offered by Fred Hicks, Pittsburgh golf expert who claimed that this particular stymie was impossible to get over or around and hole one's ball.

Hicks, who has long been against the stymie rule, claiming it is unjust because it gives impossible shots, proposed this stymie problem:

"On a perfectly flat green, that is with no roll on either side of the cup in the direction of the ball is being putted, place a regulation golf ball in the center of the line of putt and on the very lip of the cup.

"Then measure off ten feet and from that distance sink your ball."

Sounds impossible, doesn't it?

But it isn't. As a matter of fact it isn't a difficult putt.

Smith, putting on the eighteenth green at the Annandale Golf Club, dropped the first three out of four balls. Out of a total of 25 attempts he holed five balls, two on the right hand side of the ball and three on the left side.

Less Than Half of Families Own Homes

Chicago, June 18.—Eleven million families in the United States in a total of 24,350,000 own their own homes, according to B. G. Dahlberg, lumber manufacturer.

"This is only 45.6 per cent," said Dahlberg. "There would seem no sound reason why the percentage of home-owning families should not be much greater in view of the fact that our total national wealth is now $320,000,000,000 or close to $3,000 per capita for the entire population.

"Americans are becoming a race of renters and flat dwellers," Dahlberg declared.

Surveying Party From Local Office Highway Department Leaves Today for Week at Savannah.

The state highway, No. 27, from Savannah to St. Joseph, is now closed in preparation for paving which is to be started there soon, under direction of N. N. Ropes, project engineer.

A detour has been mapped out and the detour signs now up for the road between Savannah and St. Joseph. The west road to St. Joseph, is now being used, that runs straight south to St. Joseph. It goes out of Savannah one block west of the public square and enters St. Joseph on the west side of the Country Club, connecting it with St. Joseph avenue. This road is now being maintained while the other road is in the course of construction.

Three members of the state highway department here left today for Savannah to do some surveying on the Savannah-St. Joseph road. E. Warren Gotwals, who is in charge of the work here, left with Ed Shanley and Isaac Miller. They will be in Savannah about two weeks on a surveying party. Mrs. Gotwals accompanied her husband.

Why Thin, Pale Girls Are Unpopular

It is a well-known fact that thin, pale or sallow, poorly-developed girls, with dark circles under the eyes, and who always appear tired and listless, do not attract friends. Yet in thousands of cases these conditions are due merely to the lack of pure, red blood, rich in health-giving iron. By simply getting sufficient iron into their blood, these girls may quickly have the blooming cheeks, ruddy lips and well-rounded forms that make other girls so attractive and so popular.

But be sure that the iron you take is organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and not the old-fashioned liquid medicines or pills made from mineral iron that often injured the teeth and disturbed the stomach. Nuxated Iron contains organic iron, like the iron in your own blood. Try it for two weeks and notice the strength you gain. Money back if not improved. At all good druggists.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—Capt. George Meyers of the United States navy is busy apologizing to nineteen Washington newspaper men, one after another.

He isn't permitted to herd them together and apologize to them in a body, or to call them up on the telephone and get it over that way.

He must traipse around from office to office, apologizing to them personally, separately and individually.

One apology is bad enough. But 19 in succession—gosh!

Meyers isn't doing this apologizing voluntarily. Secretary of the Navy Wilbur sentenced him to do it, for spoiling a publicity stunt the secretary had his heart set on.

Now, Wilbur saw a chance recently to get some swell advertising. The dirigible Los Angeles was due to make a trip from her Lakehurst (N. J.) hangar down to Annapolis, tie up to the mast of her mooring ship, the Patoka, stay an hour or two, then fly over Washington, hook onto the Patoka once more for a short rest, and finally sail back to Lakehurst.

"I'll have some Washington correspondents go up in her while she's in this vicinity," thought the secretary. "They'll write up their trip and it'll be fine stuff for us."

He began telephoning to a selected list of correspondents—the biggest men in the business and known to him to be particularly interested in the navy.

The notice was very short and some of them found it hard to get away, but Wilbur was insistent. He said it was their duty to go. They'd be royally entertained, too. As a favor to him, he asked it.

The result was—nineteen distinguished journalists at Annapolis the next morning—the morning of the Los Angeles' expected advent.

But how to get to the Patoka, at anchor an hour's sail down Chesapeake Boy? It seemed odd no arrangements had been made.

However, the correspondents seared up a launch, in due season hauled alongside the mooring ship, and started up the ladder.

Capt. Meyers, smoking on the upper deck, sent an orderly to investigate the callers.

"Whadda ya want?" demanded the functionary harshly. The correspondents told.

The orderly reported to the captain the visitors waiting, now sulkily, meanwhile—who sent a message by his executive officer.

"We can't feed ya," the latter informed them hospitably.

"Here you," sternly addressing one of the newspaper men, "ya can't smoke here. Ya better all go back to Annapolis," he continued, "and when the Los Angeles gets here, you can come out in the bay and look at her—if ya wanta. Civilians aren't allowed on board."

Secretary Wilbur got some free publicity out of his little party all right, but it's doubtful if he cared for that kind.

The next thing anybody knew Meyers had been summoned from the Patoka to the secretary's office to do a lot of explaining. Then began his tour of apology.

To a disinterested bystander it looks a little as if the official who issued all those invitations and then forgot to provide for his guests' entertainment would feel a trifle apologetic, too.

merce of the United States, gave to him a fair understanding of the Indian problems which were confronting Missourians, and too, his record of service was the best testimony of his courake, in the opinion of President Jefferson, to undertake the organization of a "citizen soldiery" in Missouri

Immediately upon being sworn into office Governor Lewis determined to prevent the sale of Missouri scalps to the British and proceeded to organize a citizen soldiery, called the Home Guards, later known as the State Militia and now recognized by the federal and state government as the Missouri National Guard.

At the close of the first year of Governor Lewis' administration there had been organized in St. Louis, three battalions of Infantry and one troop of horses; in Ste. Genevieve two battalions of Infantry and one troop of cavalry; in St. Charles, two battalions of Infantry and one troop of horses; in Cape Girardeau, two battalions of Infantry and two troops of horses; and in New Madrid, two battalions of Infantry.

The organizations of this military force more than a century ago under the direction of Governor Lewis is considered a master stroke for it saved Missouri from an approaching crisis and laid the foundation for a citizen soldiery, the Missouri National Guard, which is now part of the first line of defense, and, unquestionably, is one of our greatest institutions, solving for the State and Nation, the perplexing problems of adequate military forces and minimum taxation for national defense. During the Lewis administration, service in the guard was compulsory, and no man physically fit was exempt. The National Guard of today is made up of volunteers impelled by a hightened pride and ardent patriotism; it represents a great decentralized army, beyond the power and control of any factions or groups, which, during times of peace, is fully under the control of the sovereign state for maintenance of law and order, and police protection which municipal powers fail, and, with the regular army, is ready for immediate field service whenever the emergency demands.

During the Lewis administration each member of the Guard was required by law to furnish his own gun, clothing and oft times supplied his own ammunition. If they drew rations they were considered fortunate, but now the Federal Government is spending more than one-half million dollars annually in Missouri in keeping up the equipment for the Missouri National Guard. All supplies for the Guard such as clothing, rifles, camp equipment, etc., are supplied at the expense of the Federal Government with the understanding that the State will furnish proper care and protection of the property.

CHANGING THE SENATE RULES.

Ira Nelson Morris, President, Uncle Sam's Voters, Washington, D. C.

Vice-President Dawes, who by his assault on the rules of the Senate during the course of his inaugural address stirred up considerable feeling in that body, now announces that he will stump the country this summer for the purpose of promoting his views among the people.

In general, conservative papers and publicists have favored the Dawes idea of shutting off Senate debate, but liberals have strongly opposed it. As for the Senate itself, the members quite generally adopted the view that the Dawes proposal meant restriction of Senate powers, and there was, during the special session, little sympathy manifested with the plan.

Indeed, the objection was raised by Senator Reed of Missouri that the Vice-President had not observed the rules in swearing in the Senators, and finally the Senate voted to insure the legalization of the procedure on that first day when conditions were so chaotic.

Since the Dawes proposal is so new, PUBLIC AFFAIRS presents below, for the affirmative of the proposal to change the rules, the Vice-President's Senate speech, and opposite it other views of Senatorial functions.

Should the Senate rules be changed in accord with the Dawes proposal?

YES.

Herewith is given the Vice-President's case:

What would be the attitude of the American people and of the individual Senators themselves toward a proposed system of rules if this was the first session of the Senate of the United States instead of the first session of the Senate in the Sixty-ninth Congress? What individual Senator would then have the audacity to propose the adoption of the present Rule XXII without modification when it would be pointed out that during the last days of a session the right that is granted every Senator to be heard for one hour after two-thirds of the Senate had agreed to bring a measure to a vote, gave a minority of even one Senator, at times, power to defeat the measure and render impotent the Senate itself That rule, which at times enables Senators to consume in oratory those last precious minutes of a session needed for momentous decisions, places in the hands of one or a minority of Senators a greater power than the veto power exercised under the Constitution by the President of the United States, which is limited in its effectiveness by the necessity of an affirmative two-thirds vote. Who would dare to contend that under the spirit of democratic government the power to kill legislation providing the revenues to pay the expenses of government should, during the last few days of a session, ever be in the hands of a minority or perhaps one Senator? Why should they ever be able to compel the President of the United States to call an extra session of Congress to keep in functioning activity the machinery of the Government itself? Who would dare oppose any changes in the rules necessary to insure that the business of the United States should always be conducted in the interests of the Nation and never be in danger of encountering a situation where one man or a minority of men might demand unreasonable concessions under threat of blocking the business of the Government? Who would dare maintain that in the last analysis the right of the Senate itself to act should ever be subordinated to the right of one Senator to make a speech?

The rules can be found, as is the custom in other deliberative and legislative assemblies, to fully protect a Senator in his right to be heard without forfeiting at any time the greater right of the Senate to act. The Constitution of the United States gives the Senate and the House of Representatives the right to adopt their own rules for the conduct of business, but this does not excuse customs and rules, which, under certain conditions, might put the power of the Senate itself in the hands of individuals to be used in legislative barter.

NO.

1. The Senate rules have grown up with the evolution of the Senate itself, and are designed to facilitate dignified, orderly consideration of the problems before it. The Senate has always been a more deliberative body than the House; it has taken pride in its freedom of speech, and that attribute has added to its dignity and influence. The rules have worked very satisfactorily, for the most part, and are thoroughly approved by the Senate itself.

2. The Senate's position in the governmental system is opposed to the idea of haste or of conformity to the views of other institutions. It was originally intended to safeguard the nation against too precipitate action on the part of the House, and for that reason its freedom of debate was jealously safeguarded. It is perhaps significant that this was not challenged seriously until popular election of Senators became a reality.

3. The Senate ought not to conform its policy to that of the executive branch of the government. There is a growing tendency, particularly upon the part of the conservative press, to ridicule Congress, and to demand that it follow slavishly executive policies. But the legislative arm of the Government is co-ordinate with the executive, and there is no more reason why the executive should dictate its policy than why it should govern the executive. It is the duty of Congress to develop national policies, and of the executive to carry them out. The legislative is the most popular branch of the government, and if democracy is to endure it must not become a mere echo of the executive. Pre-eminence for the executive is the preliminary to autocracy, and Congress should therefore guard its rights.

4. Adoption of the Dawes proposal would nullify the deliberate powers of the Senate. The House of Representatives is now governed by rules similar to those which Dawes would introduce in the Senate. The result has been a marked decline in the quality of debate on the House floor, and the practical rule of party at all times. Party regularity is elevated to a fetish by the House rules.

5. Senate debates still bring out excellent talent, and determine policies. It was admitted by a number of Senators that their attitude on the Warren case had been changed after listening to the debate on the question of his qualifications for the post of Attorney General. Senators Reed, Borah and others were in a minority when they began their fight upon him, but they brought others to their point of view. Had their freedom of debate been limited, a vote along party lines would probably have made Warren Attorney General.

Two Small Hats For Summer

TWO decidedly summer chapeaux are these that have resisted the impulse to widen the brim and become picturesque. The smaller model is of course straw in orchid color, trimmed with ribbon of the same shade. The larger model is of natural colored straw trimmed with white ribbon cartwheels. For summer sports they are highly desirable.

SICK WOMEN ATTENTION!

Read this Remarkable Testimony Regarding Results from Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Norfolk, Virginia. — "If you only knew how many women and girls have taken your medicine by hearing my testimony, it would seem wonderful to you. Every day and every chance I have I advise some one to try it. It was in June, 1904, when I had given up to never get well, that I wrote to you. My husband went to the drug-store and brought the Vegetable Compound home to me. In a few days I began to improve and I have often taken it since. I am now passing through the Change of Life and still stick by it and am enjoying wonderful health. When I first started with your medicines I was a mere shadow. My health seemed to be gone. The last doctor I had said he would give me no more local treatments unless I went to the Hospital and was operated on. That was when I gave the doctors up. Now I am a healthy robust woman. I wish I could tell the world what a wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is. I will be only too glad to answer letters from anywhere. I wish all sick women would take it." — Mrs. J. A. JONES, 317 Colley Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia.
